Filmmaker, Patricia Sahertian, presents a widespread predicament in an incisive way. CUT BACK: facing ageism, a gripping documentary about ageism in the workplace, features 15 people who have felt the sting of age discrimination after being out of work for a variety of reasons over the past few years. Surprisingly affecting not only those in their 60s and older, but as young as 40. Hear them tell their personal stories in a poignant and sincere way. Feel some of the anger, hurt and frustrations they have experienced, but also learn how they have overcome fear, humiliation and insecurity. Interspersed throughout the film are professionals in the field of aging and employment who help shed light on this topic that eventually touches everyone. Lawyers, Program Directors, Life Coaches and Artists help bring some issues about age to the forefront.
